

Exactor Address Verification Service

The Exactor Address Verification Service (AVS) Module was developed to enhance the accuracy of determining where a transaction takes place. Sales taxes are determined based on the location of a transaction. Many systems use a simple zip or zip+4 methodology for determining the location. These systems do not take into account that the zip and zip+4 are determined by the US Postal Service for ease of mail delivery. One zip block can contain multiple tax locations all with different sales tax rates and different reporting tax agencies. Relying on a zip or zip+4 methodology will most likely result in inaccurate taxes and incorrect sales tax reporting.

To accurately determine the actual physical location of a transaction, the Exactor AVS Module scrubs, cleans, and standardizes the address as input by a customer and produces an accurate address as recognized by the US Postal address verification standards.

The problem many face by relying on an address as input by a user is that any given address can have multiple forms of entry, differing from one user to another. Individuals can write their address in many different forms – often forgetting information or, worse yet, providing incorrect information.

The Exactor AVS Module will:

- Standardize the address to the US Postal address verification standards;
- Verify and/or correct the street name, number, suite information;
- Add, verify and/or update the correct 9 digit zip code information for the address;
- Ensure that the city, state and zip code match;
- Determine whether the address is a deliverable location, recognized by the US Postal Services

With the Exactor AVS Module, a seller receives notification that a buyer's address has been validated as a deliverable address and will receive the scrubbed address cleaned of typos and other standard input errors.

The Exactor AVS Module, certified for accuracy by the US Postal address verification standards, provides a cloud-based SaaS (Software as a Service) solution with address verification, which does not require any further software downloads or installations.

The Exactor AVS Module meets rigorous USPS quality requirements by validating, correcting, and standardizing address data. Top companies processing millions of addresses use USPS CASS Certified Scrubbing. With our leading technology, sellers can not only rest assured that the sale location is determined accurately, but also that the sale is made to a deliverable address recognized by the US Postal Service, resulting in higher levels of transaction credibility and lower costs associated with "address not found" product returns.
